‘Following your dreams’

Few decisions taken in life are not revoke able always. And even if they are revocable, they are companied with a huge cost. One such crucial decision is the decision of career choices. A proper blend of possible career opportunities, need of the society and the financial resources are three parameters on which a student lands in the professional world. The Women Development Cell of Shyam Lal College in collaboration with IQAC hosted a counselling session on ‘Following your dreams’ on 14th April, 2017 under the able guidance of Dr. Aradhana Sharma and was attended by 95 students. The objective of the session was inclined to guide and advise the students with their future career options that they can pursue right after the graduation. The session also extended the students’ knowledge on the postgraduation opportunities available once they earn the graduation degree.

The counsellor guided the students to always be open to learning new skills and technology. However, with each subsequent day, there are smart brains and reasons that a novel technology that would change the realms of the society. With upcoming cut-throat competition to think and innovate, it seems that the implications of entrepreneurship would go more relevant. On top of that, it seems that the former innovations are often found to be inferior as soon as the recent and superior (latter) ones turn up. We might be the top of our Academic batch today, if we do not stay updated, five years hence with zero experience and best of the academic learnings we may not be the first choice of the employers.

The counsellor also opened up the Pandora box of being innovative. Caring entrepreneurial vision is the need of the hour, hence we should always be open to take some calculated risk in our decision-making. Not sitting for a competitive examination is worst then not qualifying that examination. The series of challenges that we have had in our life helps us be the strongest fellow even if we tend to lose from our troubling times. No career is a cakewalk. Some career options are easy to step in but with time they either turn monotonous, obsolete or less rewarding to survive.

For example for pursuing MBA, the entrance examination is not an easy nut to crack. However, if someone chooses to go for competitive examination there are three levels to struggle for different magnitudes. There may be instances where you plan to go for a professional course as per the industry needs. These professional courses go tough at subsequent levels and hence qualifying for these courses may not be possible for everyone.

It was also recommended that we are living in a country where food is a luxury too many households. So we all need to appreciate the resources that we have in first place and also endeavour to make the best out of it not just for us but also for the society and the future generations.

The session ended with a vote of thanks and students appreciated the motivation impelled by the resource person. Team WDC extended the gratitude to Counsellor for such an enlightening session and planned for similar sessions that need to be in pipeline.
