Intergenerational Mela: World Day of Social Justice

20th February 2020

World Day of Social Justice is an international day that recognizes the need to promote social justice, which includes efforts to tackle issues such as poverty, exclusion, gender inequality, unemployment, human rights, and social protections. The United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) has decided to observe 20 February annually as the World Day of Social Justice after it was approved on 26 November 2007. It started to be celebrated in 2009. The day is celebrated to mark the coming together of people from all lines of businesses to support the idea of justice, victims' rights and most importantly ensuring no crime takes place hampering peace at national and societal levels.

The day is also a reminder of the significance of social justice for the underprivileged and people who are subjected to harsh and authoritarian treatment.

On the occasion of World Day of Social Justice, National Institute of Social Defence, Ministry of Social Justice and Empowerment, Govt. of India in association with Anugraha organized an Intergenerational Mela on 20th February 2020. It was organized at Swabhiman Parisar, Kasturba Nagar, Shahdara from 10:00 AM to 1:00 PM. 15 volunteers of National Service Scheme (NSS) of Shyam Lal College (University of Delhi) took part in this event.
