

Entrepreneurship Cell Project ZORGO

The budding entrepreneurs of E-Cell realized the need of the hour of how isolated and depressed certain some people are! There are a number of studies that talk about how depressed and isolated the youth of the country feels and there are times, when they are in a position of self-doubt. Some people even undertake such drastic step of committing suicide or harm to others in society. However, the root cause of such a situation is often the lack of a person in their lives who can give a patient listening to the person.

Understanding the need to give vent to one's ideas and pour one's heart out, the E-Cell team came up with Project ZORGO. A team comprising of over 30 students under the able guidance of faculty members, came up with this novel idea. The idea behind the concept was to give an unbiased listening to the ones in distress and provide them emotional support. The project was presented at various platforms, including Yuva Spandana, and received much appreciation from all the corners.
