The Eco-Club volunteers of SLC completed its Birdhouse Installation Project, a crucial step towards creating a sustainable campus environment on 1st December 2025. 10 students participated in the "Best Out of Waste" activity, where they creatively up-cycled discarded materials like cardboard, plastic bottles, and wooden scraps to build functional birdhouses. The project aimed to promote waste reduction, reuse, and recycling while providing shelter for local birds on campus. Through this activity, students learned the value of turning waste into useful products and the importance of conserving biodiversity. The installed birdhouses will help support local bird species and enhance the green cover of the college. This initiative reflected the club's commitment to sustainability and encouraged students to adopt eco-friendly practices in daily life.
