The Eco-Club of Shyam Lal College organized a Pollution Awareness Drive in response to Delhi's severe AQI levels on 3rd December 2025. 40 students participated in the drive, spreading awareness among students and in the nearby areas of Shahdara about the urgent need to combat pollution. The drive focused on educating people about the health impacts of poor air quality and the role of plastic waste, vehicular emissions, and improper waste segregation in worsening pollution. Through rallies, posters, and direct interaction, members emphasized sustainable practices such as reducing single-use plastic, using public transport, and keeping surroundings clean. The initiative highlighted that protecting air quality and the environment requires collective action both inside the campus and in the surrounding community.
