What is Sickle Cell Anaemia?

Sickle Cell Anaemia (SCA) is a severe, inherited blood disorder that affects red blood cells. Normally, red blood cells are round and flexible, moving easily through blood vessels to deliver oxygen. In SCA, a genetic mutation causes these cells to become rigid and crescent-shaped, resembling a farmer's sickle

Objective:-

The activity aimed to create awareness about Sickle Cell Anaemia through creative visual representation by NCC cadets, encouraging better understanding of the disease among the general public.

Overview:-

NCC cadets actively participated in the online poster-making awareness initiative . They showcased creativity, awareness, and a strong sense of responsibility through their work. Posters highlighted key aspects such as symptoms, prevention, causes, treatment, and the importance of early diagnosis.

Highlights:-

- Excellent participation and enthusiasm shown by cadets.
- Posters were informative, visually appealing, and carried clear health messages.
- Use of digital tools and innovative design was commendable.
- Many cadets incorporated facts, slogans, and medical advice, enhancing the educational value.

Impact and Outcome:-

- The activity helped in educating cadets about a crucial public health issue.
- A platform to express their concern and take part in health issues through art.
- Posters were later shared on social media platforms to reach a wider audience.

Suggestions for Improvement

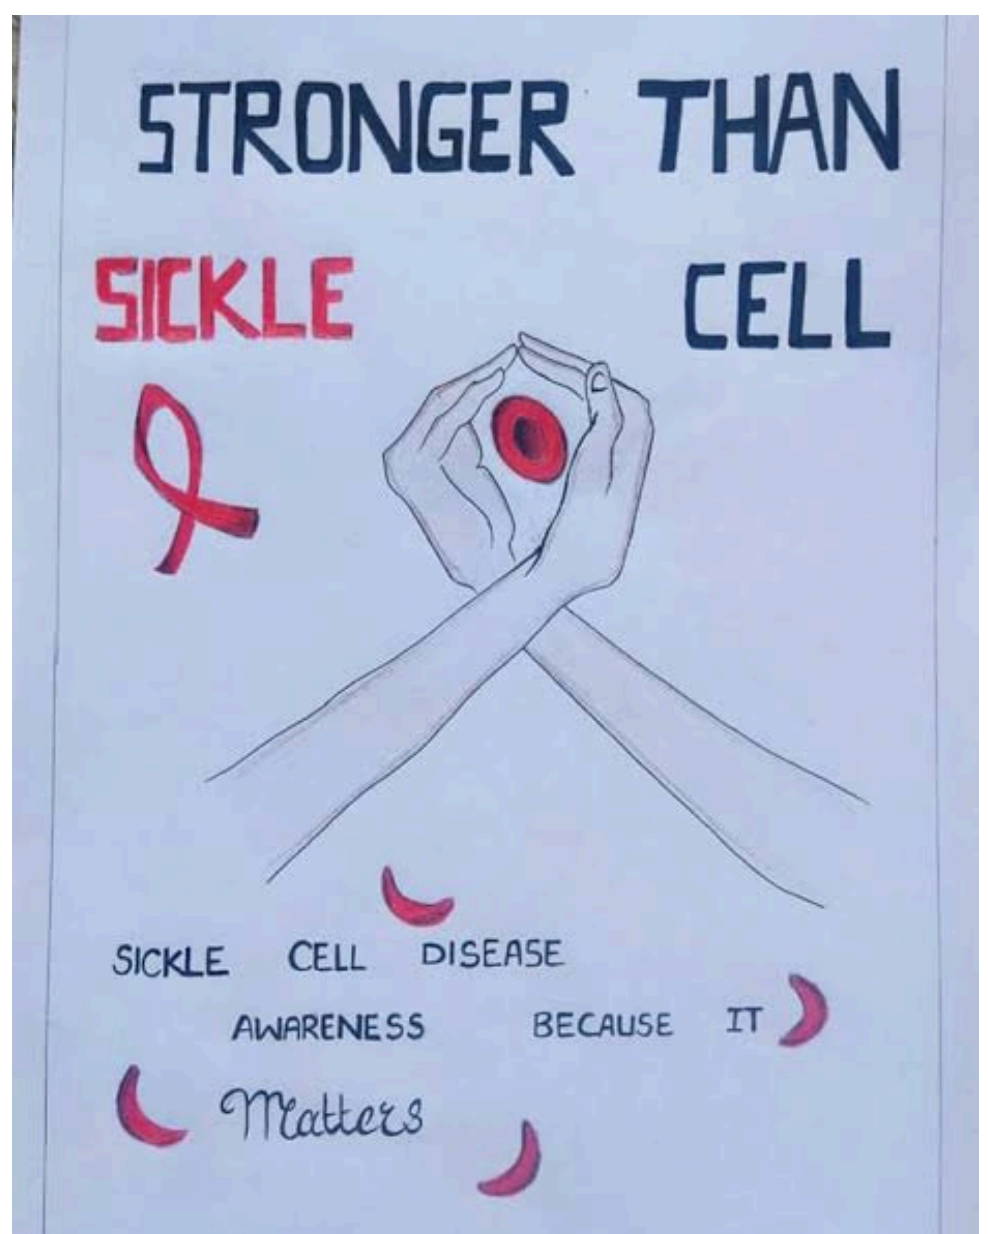

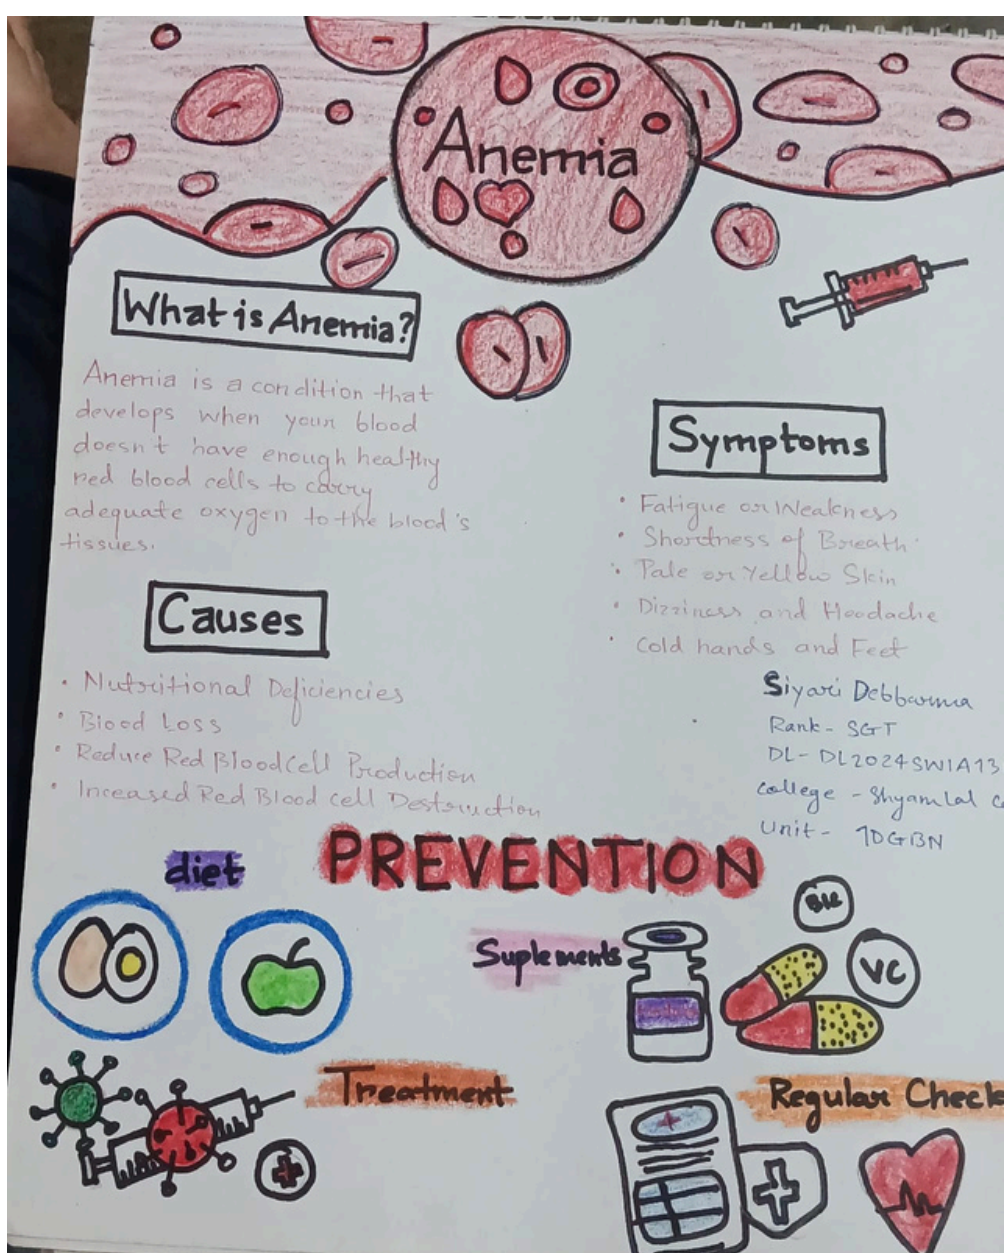

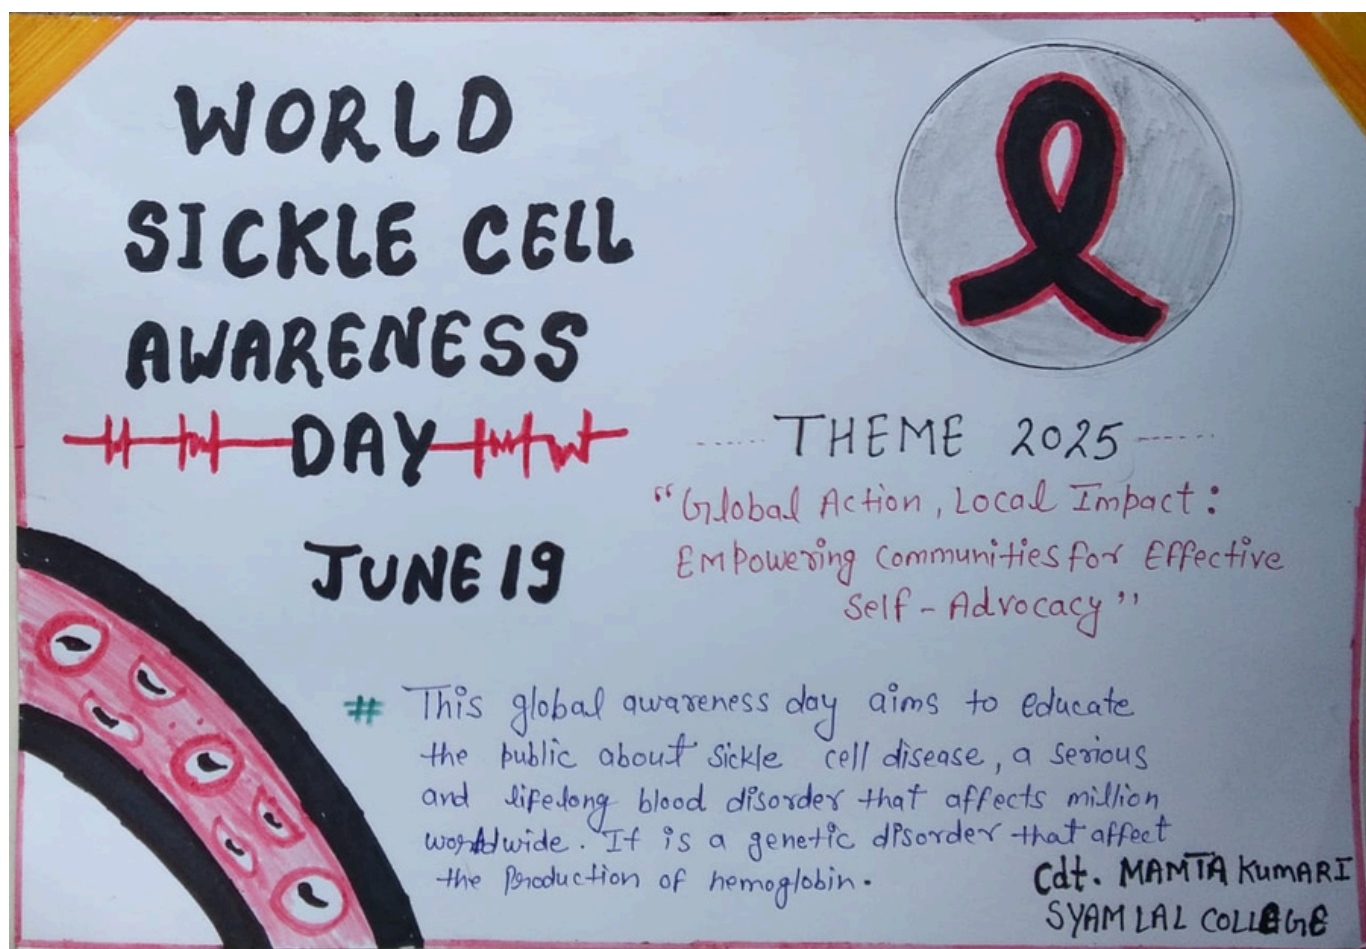

- Organizing a follow-up webinar or expert talk on the topic.
- Displaying top posters during college/community health awareness events.
- Including community engagement to expand the impact beyond cadets.

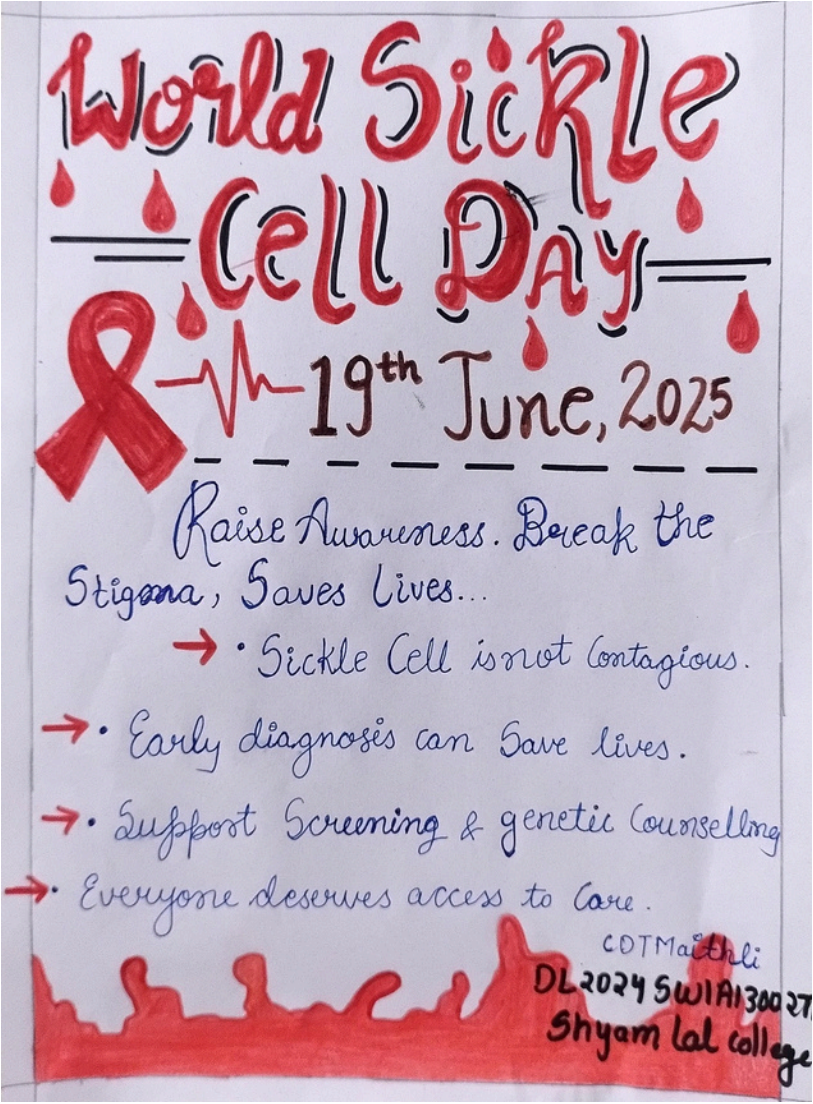

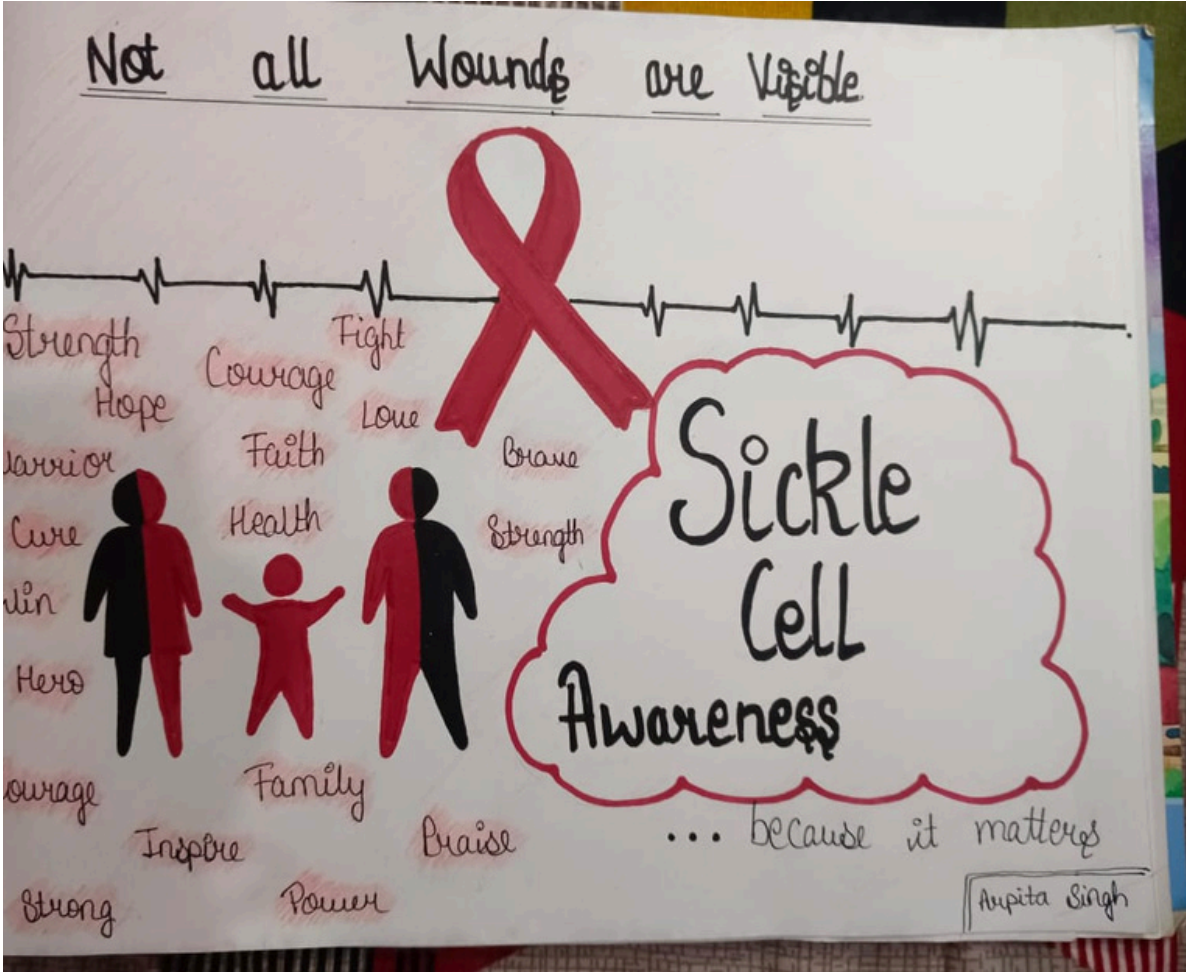

Conclusion:-

The online poster-making activity proved to be an effective method for spreading awareness about Sickle Cell Anaemia. It combined creativity, medical knowledge, and social responsibility – showcasing the dedication of NCC cadets towards nation-building and health awareness
